RE: Protecting Ratepayers and Our Environment

Dear Mr. Speaker,

We are grateful for your commitment to diversifying our energy generation resources, supporting new industry in our region, and moving our state toward meeting its environmental goals. We have an exciting opportunity to replace our aging power generation fleet with renewable energy resources. Not only will doing so bolster our state's economy by creating thousands of new jobs, but it will also help ensure that Massachusetts transitions to energy resources that are sustainable and aligned with our clean energy future. We look forward to further discussion about those opportunities in the coming weeks.

We write today to express our deep concern about one concept, however, and that is proposed ratepayer financing of gas pipeline infrastructure. We urge you to omit any public support for gas pipeline expansion from omnibus energy legislation.

The proposals to pay for the $5-8 billion cost for new pipelines by assessing a surcharge, tariff or tax on electricity customers are unprecedented. Ordinarily, the natural gas producers would be expected to pay for this infrastructure expansion, if the expected revenue from natural gas sales would justify the cost.¹ The fact that this is not happening means industry players have determined the risk is not worth the reward. Why should the ratepayer shoulder risk when private industry is unwilling to?

Massachusetts is already heavily reliant on gas for electric power generation. Deepening this commitment will create liabilities for Massachusetts ratepayers. In 2014, 59% of our electricity was generated by natural gas and policymakers should be wary of increasing our state's dependence on a single, imported resource,² particularly since the natural gas market is notoriously volatile. A diversified energy portfolio guards ratepayers against price spikes or fluctuation.

² <http://www.eia.gov/state/?sid=MA>

Gas pipeline expansion through our region also exposes the public to greater economic risk by enabling gas exports to international markets. A 2015 analysis by the U.S. Department of Energy determined that exposing U.S. customers to a volatile global gas market could raise domestic prices more than 7%.³

Proposed gas pipeline projects impact communities across our state as well as our ability to meet existing legislative mandates. These pipelines would run through private property—diminishing property values—as well as treasured public lands protected by Article 97 of the State Constitution. Moreover, expanding gas pipelines make it impossible for Massachusetts to meet our emissions reductions requirements under the Global Warming Solutions Act.

For all of these reasons, the proposed pipelines have been met with strong opposition from our constituents as well as state and local officials across the Commonwealth. In addition, New England's bipartisan congressional delegations have also expressed grave concerns about pipeline projects in our region.

We look forward to working with you to support legislation that will create a diversified energy portfolio for our state, and reduce our over-reliance on natural gas. Substantial new pipeline infrastructure is inconsistent with our shared goals. Therefore, we ask you to ensure energy legislation does not commit ratepayers to bearing the cost and risk associated with financing new gas infrastructure. Doing so will create liabilities for the many legislators whose districts are impacted by one or more proposed fossil fuel projects, increase our state's over-reliance on gas, and saddle ratepayers with significant expenses for years to come. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
